AN UNFORGETTABLE EDUCATIONAL EXPERIENCE AWAITS:

CONSERVATION VOLUNTEERING AT THE ELEPHANT CONSERVATION CENTER IN LAOS

Where Science, Culture and Authentic Laos Meet

Step into the heart of Laos, where elephants roam under the ancient canopy of Sayaboury's forests, and where conservation is not just a mission – it's a way of life.

The Elephant Conservation Center's 7-Day / 6-Night Conservation Volunteering Programme invites you to join our team of conservationists, veterinarians, and biologists for an unforgettable week of learning, service, and connection.

Far from the crowds, on the serene banks of Nam Tien Lake, surrounded by the majestic Phou Xang mountain range, volunteers become part of a living laboratory where elephants lead the lesson. You'll gain hands-on experience in habitat restoration, behavioural observation, and ethical animal care – all while learning from Laos' leading wildlife professionals.

Each day unfolds with purpose: trekking through the forest to collect trees seeds and elephant dung (fertilizer), observing and recording social dynamics at the Socialisation Area, maintaining our tree nursery or shadowing our veterinary team at the Elephant Hospital. In our research lab, you'll discover how behavioural data guide real conservation decisions and how to monitor elephant health through white cells count. Every task, every observation, every moment spent in the field directly contributes to the ECC's rewilding and welfare programmes – the first of their kind in Laos.

This is more than volunteering; it's a transformation. As the week progresses, you'll find yourself part of something larger – a shared commitment to give elephants the life they deserve, and to keep their forests alive for generations to come. Evenings bring moments of reflection beside the lake, with cultural exchanges led by Lao mahouts, whose deep knowledge and humility remind us that true conservation begins with respect.

By the end of your stay, you will have acquired not only new knowledge and practical conservation skills but also a deep, emotional understanding of what it means to live in harmony with nature. Join us in Sayaboury – the true Homeland of the Lao Elephant — and help write the next chapter of elephant conservation in Southeast Asia.

Anabel López Pérez

HEAD OF EDUCATION & RESEARCH

Anabel joined the ECC at its inception and never left. Her enthusiasm and energy are contagious. She began by limiting interaction with elephants, then by establishing herding protocols that now form the backbone of our rewilding programme. A biologist with limited knowledge of Asian elephants when she arrived in Laos, Anabel's expertise has grown rapidly, and today she is a renowned Asian elephant behaviour expert contributing her work to several leading research institutes, including the Smithsonian Institution and the IUCN Asian Elephant Specialist Group.

In 2025, Anabel was awarded a PhD from Chiang Mai University, Thailand. Her groundbreaking research explored how different management approaches affect metabolism, stress, social structure, and reproduction in captive Asian elephants, offering valuable insights into welfare and conservation practices in both Laos and Thailand.

Anabel has a deep passion for elephants, and the ECC has become the sanctuary where she fully expresses this commitment—shaping elephant care and conservation in the region through science.

Moukthida Vilasith

ECC HEAD VETERINARIAN

Moukthida “Mouk” Vilasith is a dedicated wildlife veterinarian at the Elephant Conservation Center in Sayaboury. With a strong focus on elephant health, she supports ECC's breeding, rewilding, and veterinary programmes. Mouk has trained with international institutions such as the Denver Zoo and Smithsonian Conservation Biology Institute, expanding her skills in both laboratory analysis and fieldwork. In addition to her clinical work, she actively participates in youth education programmes across Laos, representing ECC at events organised by Econox and the Anoulak Association.

Through her expertise and passion, Mouk helps bridge the gap between conservation science and community engagement – inspiring future generations to care for wildlife.

Mouk teaches at the Wildlife Course for 5th year veterinary students from the National University of Laos organised yearly by ECC, LCTW (Lao Conservation Trust for Wildlife) and Free the Bears.

Kan Thissamone

VETERINARY TECHNICIAN

Kan was working with ElefantAsia NGO for several years as an assistant veterinary technician, boarding the organisation's Mobile Veterinary Clinics to provide first aid to elephants wounded on logging sites. He developed an intimate relationship with the country's mahouts while learning veterinary techniques with international veterinarians and staff from the Lao Department of Livestock. When the NGO's projects were eventually autonomised in 2012, Kan naturally proposed to join the Elephant Conservation Center and help with the design and operations of the country's first Elephant Hospital. Sparing no effort to improve the elephants' diet and health, Kan is supervising the supplementary food production unit, positive reinforcement and musth control protocols, mahouts' daily meetings as well as providing veterinary care to elephants in need at the ECC or outside of it. His skills, learned in the field, have earned him due respect from mahouts and the Asian elephant conservation community. His numerous contributions at various elephant care workshops throughout the region (India, Indonesia, Thailand, Myanmar) are always highly valued and have largely contributed to the excellent reputation of the Elephant Conservation Center abroad.

His calm presence, cultural insight, and deep knowledge of local ecosystems help guests connect meaningfully with nature and community. As your dedicated guide throughout the conservation volunteering stay, Kaen ensures an enriching, responsible, perfect logistics and authentic ecotourism experience that fosters learning, respect, and lasting memories for all participants.

RESPONSIBILITY

When booking a stay at ECC, the client understands that ECC is established in a forested area of Laos where the standards of accommodation, transport, safety, hygiene, level of infrastructure development and medical facilities, and telecommunication services are not necessarily the same as one may be used to at home, or one would find on a conventional holiday. This type of stay inherently involves a higher level of personal risk than a 'conventional holiday'.

ECC, the Government of Laos and the Lao National Tourism Administration cannot accept any responsibility for accidents, injuries, death, or loss of personal effects. The client understands that during the course of the stay certain events may occur, including, but not limited to, accident or illness in remote places without medical facilities, political instability and the forces of nature.

The client agrees to assume all risks associated with the journey to the maximum extent permitted by law. Each client acknowledges that staying at ECC requires a degree of flexibility, and understands that the itinerary, accommodation and modes of transport are subject to change without prior notice due to local circumstances. Should ECC deem it advisable to amend an itinerary for any reason, it may do so by shortening, varying or re-routing any trip. These changes can incur additional expenses that may be charged to the client, if the reason for any alteration is outside control from ECC.

While traveling with ECC, the client agrees to accept the authority of the leader or local operator at all time. He/she is aware that travel within a group may involve compromise to accommodate the diverse desires and physical abilities of group members. The client understands that ECC reserves the right to decline the participation of any person as a member of the group at any time. The client acknowledges that ECC contracts a network of companies, government agencies and individuals throughout the country to assist in the running of its stays. To the best of ECC knowledge, these third parties are qualified to perform the duties they are contracted to perform. However, ECC will not be held liable for any injury, damage, loss, delay or irregularity that may occur due to the behaviour of these third parties. ECC will not accept responsibility or liability for any traveller who contravenes any law or regulation of Lao PDR. No employee, servant or agent of ECC has authority to alter these conditions.

The ECC community includes people from many different cultural backgrounds and ages, so we are asking that our visitors be tolerant of others while on site.
